Communication Studies

Communication studies addresses the processes involved in human communication and behavior. There are three types of communication: verbal, involving listening to a person to understand the meaning of a message; written, in which a message is read; and nonverbal communication involving observing a person and inferring meaning. The discipline encompasses a range of topics, from face-to-face conversation to mass media outlets, such as television broadcasting. For business communication content, consult the Business English and Communication section in the business library.

- Book: Communication in the Real World - An Introduction to Communication Studies
Book: Organizational Communication - Theory, Research, and Practice

- Book: Introduction to Communication (Paynton and Hahn)

- Book: An Introduction to Group Communication

- Book: Exploring Public Speaking (Barton and Tucker)

- Book: Stand up, Speak out - The Practice and Ethics of Public Speaking
Book: Public Speaking (The Public Speaking Project)

- Book: Arguing Using Critical Thinking (Marteney)

- Book: Human Relations (Dias)

- Book: Media Innovation and Entrepreneurship (Ferrier and Mays)
Book: Writing for Strategic Communication Industries (Roberts)

Book: Mastering Public Relations

Book: Language and Culture in Context - A Primer on Intercultural Communication (Godwin-Jones)

Book: Intercultural Communication for the Community College (Karen Krumrey-Fulks)
Communications 256: Intercultural Communication

- Book: Diversity and Difference in Communication

- Book: Interpersonal Communication - A Mindful Approach to Relationships (Wrench et al.)

Thumbnail: Shure Brothers microphone, model 55s. (CC BY-SA 3.0; Holger.Ellgaard).